Herbert Hoover Dentands Sanity in Taxation as Vital

Presidency of the proposed $100,000 .-000 Foreign Trade Financias Corporaor of the Federal Reserve Board.

"Best Possible Selection."

"We believe that no better selection ould possibly be made and, while it is rue that he can be ill spared from the losition he now occupies, still we believe hat the maximum of pressure on the vistem has passed and that he will see n opportunity for still greater service to the country in this undertaking."

Mr. McHugh said the organization ommittee will at once take up the camaism to raise its capital. He explained that the corporation was to be organized under the Edge act, an amendment to the Federal Reserve act, and that it would have a capital of $100.000.000 and will offer its debentures up to $1.000.000.000 to the public, using the proceeds finance the foreign trade of this ountry.

In explaining the work of the corporation Mr. McHugh said:

"It is proposed that this corporation hall not in any way interfere with the business of our commercial banks. Indeed, on the contrary, it is proposed to aid and supplement them. While it may under the law purchase bills from exporters, manufacturers and others, its chief function will be to make long time loans which the commercial banks should not undertake to do. By making these long time loans it will render invaluable assistance to the exporter, manufacturer and producer by relieving the commercial banks of the necessity of carrying for the them what are in facting time credits in short time form.

"The corporation will be under the supervision of the Federal Reserve Board, which supervises our Federal Reserve Bank system. plaining the work of the corpora-ources."

Other speakers at the luncheon, over which William C. Breed presided, were Herbert Hoover and A. C. Bedford, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, both members of the organization committee of bers of the organization committee of the corporation.

Mr. Hoover pointed out that the only way to restore Europe financially was through the investment there of some part at least of the proceeds of our exports, explaining that it was not possible for the countries of that continent to repay us immediately for the foodstuffs and raw materials she needed so badly and which we had in abundance. At the same time, Mr. Hoover said, the issue of disarmament is involved in the process of recuperation. He said:

Our Warehouses Bursting.

Our Warehouses Bursting.

"If you will contemplate the United States at the present moment with our warsineness bursting, with food, with food actually rotting many places within our borders, with raw materials unmarketable, with our shelves over-crowned with textiles, if you will contemplate Europe to-day short of food mable to clothe her people, and if you will contemplate at the same moment that this Government is expending a sum annually more than would be require to set the whole processes of business affont, you may be able to come to a very trite conclusion that why impose unon us, the business community a burden of $500,000,000 a year in taxation, and at the same time ask us to restore the processes of business upon which the vital life of our people must be maintained. In all these questions there is involved deeply the groblem of faxation, and unless we can have some mose sanity in the whole relationship as to armament we have but little hope of limiting from our community that surplus of resources with which we can upbuild of the processes of the processes of the processes of business upon which the vital life of our people must be maintained.
